Clearing The Chaos

It's a great time to do some decluttering before the holidays. Decluttering now will help get your house ready for gatherings and for new items coming in. It's easy to feel overwhelmed, so focus on these items.

Outgrown Toys and Bikes

Go through toys that your kids aren't playing with to make room for new ones.

Unwanted or Broken Holiday Decorations

That garland might have looked good on the staircase of your old apartment but if you don't have a spot for it in your current home, donate it or toss it.

Gifts You've Never Used

Stop holding on to things out of guilt. Sell them on KSL or Facebook Marketplace, donate them, or regift them.

Expired Food, Medication, Cleaning Supplies

Although many foods can be consumed past their expiration date, they may become stale or change their flavor or consistency. Medications and cleaning supplies lose their potency.

Winter Clothes

If you haven't worn that sweater in two years, it's probably time to donate it. Go through your coats, gloves, hats and boots and donate anything you're not wearing or if it doesn't fit.

Old Towels and Linens

Animal shelters will often take old towels and blankets. If you need new ones, check out the Black Friday sales.
