Alpaca Adventure

Looking for a fun and unique local outing? Head to Wasatch Back Alpacas in Heber where you'll spend time with one of the friendliest herds around.

During your one hour tour, you'll learn all about these gentle animals, how they're raised and why their incredibly soft fiber is often compared to silk or cashmere. You can pet and feed the alpacas, capture plenty of photos, and take a guided walk through the pasture. Depending on the season, your visit may also include spinning demonstrations, arts and crafts, or festive holiday activities.

Tours are intentionally kept small, making them perfect for families, couples, and anyone looking for a memorable day away from the everyday rush. Admission is $20 for adults and $15 for children. Tours are available late mornings on weekdays and from 10 AM to 6 PM on weekends. Visit them online at https://wasatchbackalpacas.com.

Be sure to browse their farm store, stocked with a variety of alpaca products including handcrafted yarn, hats, scarves, luxurious blankets, stuffed alpacas, and plenty of unique gifts.

Whether you're an animal lover, fiber arts enthusiast, or simply looking for a unique local adventure, Wasatch Back Alpacas is well worth adding to your weekend plans.

Utah Museum Month

Did you know that there are nearly 300 museums, zoos, gardens and heritage sites in Utah? July is Utah Museum Month and the Utah Museums Association encourages you to explore a museum that you are not familiar with. If you visit 5 or more museums during the month, you can request a collectible sticker from the UMA. Click here to learn more and for the Utah Museum Passport to keep track of which museums you visit.

Check out some of these museums you may not be familiar with:
Mildred Berryman Institute
Magna Ethnic & Mining Museum
Topaz Museum
Swaner Preserve & EcoCenter
